

A first step in German. For your students.

Introduce A1-focused German practice through KLAR Campus: a supplementary learning pilot for colleges, universities and learning institutes in India.

The proposed offer

Free pilot practice access for an agreed student cohort, subject to approval and written confirmation of seats, access dates and available features. Begin with 25-50 students and review participation after 30 days. No payment or automatic paid renewal is taken by the website.

For your students	For your coordinator
Guided A1 practice in listening, reading, writing, speaking and vocabulary, with English guidance.	A private class code and access to progress that students explicitly agree to share.
Free public samples can be tried before the pilot. Additional library access requires an allocated pilot membership seat.	A launch checklist, student invitation copy and a participation review framework. Orientation arrangements are agreed before launch.

How we launch together

1. Nominate a coordinator and agree the cohort.
2. Confirm the pilot scope, access dates and seats in writing.
3. Apply in the institute portal; KLAR verifies the institute and enables the agreed seats.
4. Create an A1 class, allocate seats and invite students with its private code.
5. Review first lessons, participation and feedback after 30 days.

Clear expectations

KLAR provides practice materials, not official German certification. Materials are awaiting named educator review; listening currently uses device-generated speech. Live tuition, exam bookings, admissions and job placement are excluded. A class code alone does not unlock membership. Individual progress sharing requires student consent.
